"Animal, Mineral, Vegetable: Ethics and Objects" examines what happens when we cease to assume that only humans exert agency. Through a careful examination of medieval, early modern and contemporary lifeworlds, these essays collectively argue against ecological anthropocentricity. Sheep, wolves, camels, flowers, chairs, magnets, landscapes, refuse and gems are more than mere objects.

It's called Animal, Vegetable, Mineral, and the goal is simple: Tell us what you're looking at, and see how good you are at recognizing the patterns of the minuscule. A note: We're using the category names loosely; "mineral," for example, refers to anything made by humans or by natural abiotic processes, not only to minerals in the scientific sense.
